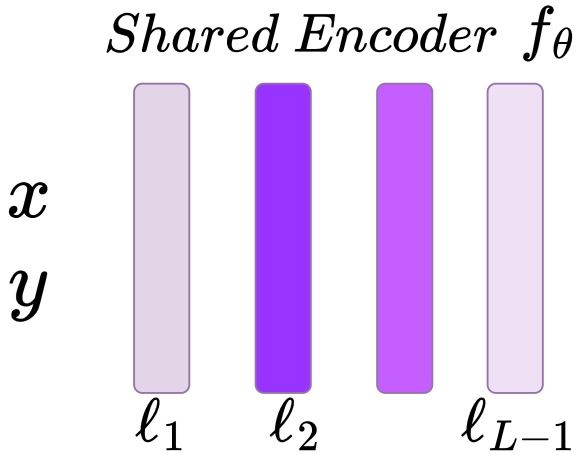
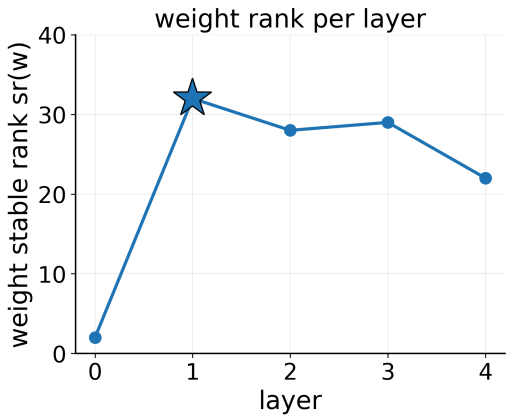
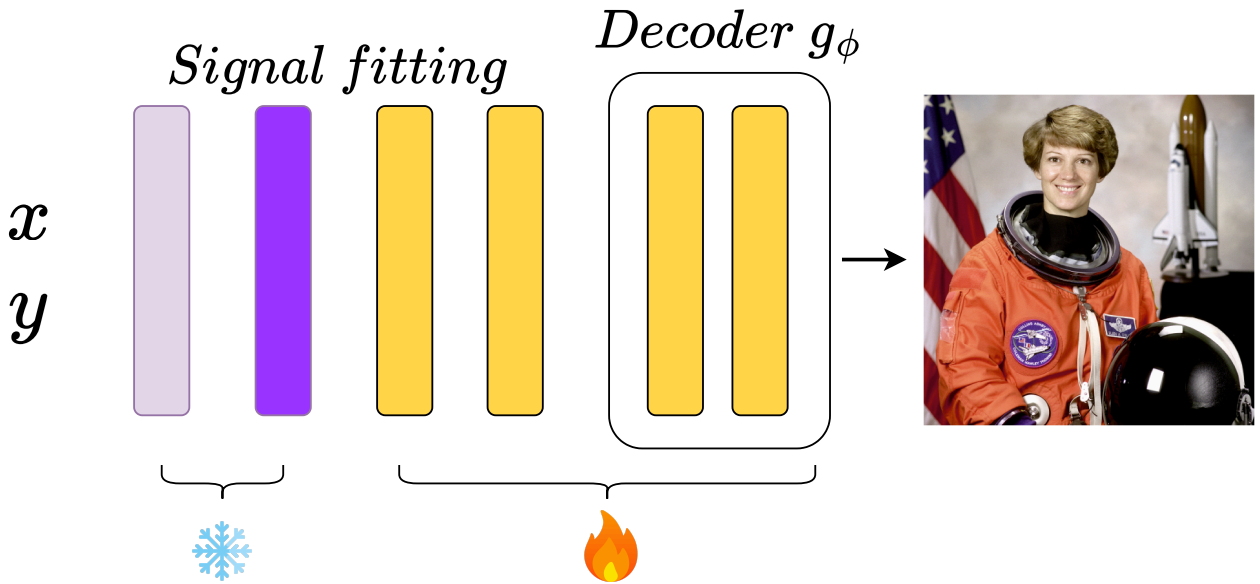
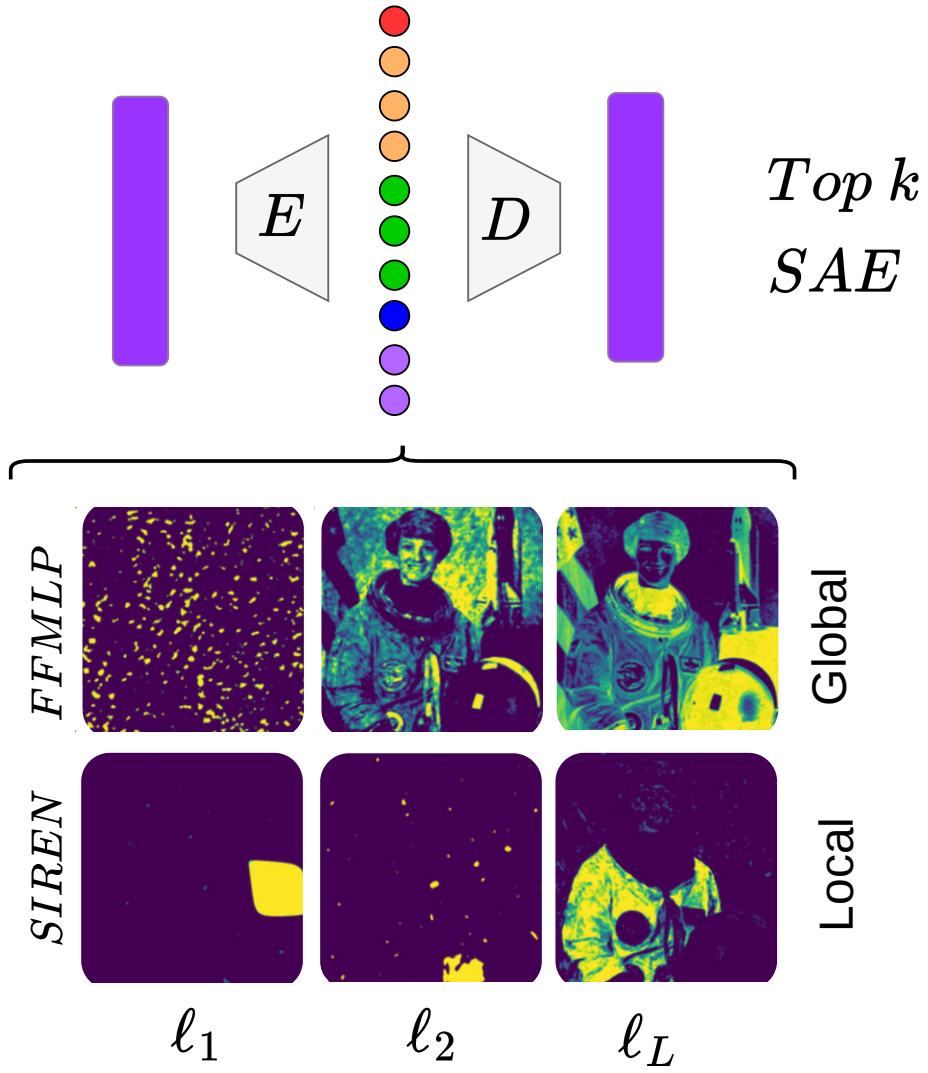
Which layers transfer better to new signals?









What do those layers encode?